by westcott®

"This is the coolest thing since doorknobs were invented. I've wrestled with subtractive lighting for this entire century so far (6 years). I've purchased and made various devices that worked, but were clunky. This one isn't. It's a Westcott product, but for the time being, it's only available through me. So if you want a neat top and side blocker that you can carry around the yard, then stake the light stand into the grass, search no more."

Fuzzy Duenkel

Note: I added a counter-weighted arm (not shown here) to balance the weight of the arm and panels. This can be done with an aluminum pipe, large washers on the end of the pipe, and hose clamps to attach the pipe to the reflector arm holder. Also, it's best to drill holes in the legs of your light stand to stake it down, to prevent wind from blowing it over. Call me at 262-338-2779, or email me if you have questions regarding this modification.
